RUSSIA CALMLY ACCEPTS ISOLATION OF HER GIBRALTAR IN THE FAR EAST; THINKS JAPAN CAN NEVER CAPTURE IT

Port Arthur Is the Citadel of an Intrenched Camp Covering the Entire Lower End of the Liao-Tung Peninsula, Thirty Miles Long and Consisting of Line After Line of Costly Defenses Which the Japanese Must Attack One at a Time in a Siege of the Port.

GENERAL STOESSEL DECLARES HE WILL NEVER YIELD.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The calmness with which the Russians accept the isolation of what always has been regarded as the Russian Gibraltar in the far East is remarkable. In military circles it had been considered inevitable from the first. No attempt is made to belittle the energy shown by the enemy, but from the strategic points of view, the investment of the fortress is regarded as relieving the military situation on the mainland, which had been much embarrassed by the necessity for maintaining the sea-girt stronghold at the extremity of the Liao-Tung Peninsula.
Besides, the utmost confidence is expressed in the ability of the fortress to withstand a siege. The whole lower end of the peninsula, from Kin-Chow, thirty miles above Port Arthur, south, is an intrenched camp commanded by a chain of most formidable fortifications, which surround the crest of a high hill. Millions of rubles and years of work have been devoted to rendering the place impregnable by land or sea. The railroad circling within this camp will permit of the easy transportation of the defending troops.
RUSIANS THINK JAPS HAVE NO CHANCE.
According to the Russian view, the Japanese have a herculean task before them in the event of their attempting the reduction of the fortress. Successive lines of defenses must be carried, and the Japanese operations cannot begin at the advanced position, Kin-Chow, until their siege guns are landed.
General Stoessel, who will have supreme command of the defense of Port Arthur, is considered to be able and resourceful and to have an indomitable will. His orders of the day have breathed a spirit of unyielding defiance. One of them declared that the last man must die in the defense of Port Arthur.
The latest newspaper dispatches from the beleaguered fortress contained an account of a stirring appeal made by General Stoessel to his troops yesterday on the occasion of the review in honor of the Empress's name day, in which he announced that he would never surrender.
In addition to the 10,000 sailors on board the ships at Port Arthur and the regular fortress artillery, probably numbering 2,000 men, the defending force consists of a division of riflemen and three batteries of field artillery, a total of about 2,600 men.
FORTRESS WELL PROVISIONED; NO NONCOMBATANTS THERE.
In anticipation of the severance of communication, all the valuable public documents had been removed to Moscow, and the work of supplying the fortress with provisions and ammunition had been progressing for weeks. The authorities apparently are satisfied that practically no noncombatants remain there. The inhabitants of Port Dalny were sent away some time ago.
The newspapers accept the news stoically, adding the people not to be discouraged, since the cutting off of Port Arthur was a foregone conclusion from the first.
The Novo Vremya says:
"The fortress and its defenders must now shift for themselves, until our army in sufficient strength can come down from the North and rescue them. In the meantime the people must accustom themselves to be without direct news from Port Arthur."

taken over the World's Fair grounds and speeches were served at the Temple Inn. Speeches were made by Colonel J. R. Stowe of Kansas City, Mo., former American Consul to Cape Town, Africa; George W. Smith, Louis Rosen and Willis Kelch-off. After luncheon a reception was held at the T. P. A. Pavilion.
APRIL SHIPMENTS BEAT RECORD.
Traffic Manager Hillery Reports Receipt of 1,228 Cars of Exhibits.
April shipments of exhibits to the World's Fair broke all records. During the month Traffic Manager Hillery reports, 1,228 cars of exhibits were received and unloaded on the grounds. The total aggregate of pounds represented in these shipments was 45,870. The average number of cars unloaded each day was sixty-four and one-half. The number of cars that can be unloaded in a day is 200.
Mr. Hillery takes exception to the statement published and attributed to exhibitors that delay in their installation at the Exposition has been due to transmission of freight, because of insufficient railroad facilities.
He says that such statement is not based upon facts and that they existed and exist at the present time.
The East St. Louis and St. Louis initial lines, he says, have given exhibit right of way, affording the Exposition Traffic Department absolute co-operation to the end of facilitating delivery of exhibits with exhibits wherever the exhibitors have properly billed their exhibits and notified the department as they should.
TO TEST SLOT MACHINES.
Exposition Management Will Technically Violate the Sunday Law.
The congressional law forbidding public admissions into the World's Fair grounds on Sundays is to be technically violated this afternoon by the Exposition management. The occasion will be the test of the five coin slot machines at the Lindell boulevard entrance.
The men who are employed to enter the slot machines will be used to demonstrate the rapidly with which a line of visitors may deposit their coins and receive their prizes. To-day the Exposition will be closed tight except to pass holders. All of the exhibits will be closed except for workmen who are engaged in them.
SWEDISH PAVILION READY.
Opening of Building to-Morrow Will Be an Informal Affair.
The opening of the Swedish building to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock will be purely informal. No special invitations have been issued to Exposition officials or others. On that date the building will be open, and all Exposition officials and the public in general are invited to inspect the building.
There will be no program or ceremonies. At a later date, to be announced, a formal opening will be given, on which occasion the Swedish Government will be represented. Invitations then may be by card, though the detail has not yet been announced.
Canadian Editors to Attend.
Louis Larive, Government representative for the Canadian press at the World's Fair, says that 400 Canadian editors will attend the World's Press Parliament, which will be held in St. Louis during the week beginning May 16. Mr. Larive has made reservations for the Canadian editors at the Indiana Hotel. Fourteen representatives will attend as members of the Canadian Parliament.
Humorists to Meet.
The American Press Humorists will meet at the World's Fair May 20. Robert Love, the secretary, who is connected with the General Press Bureau of the Government, says arrangements for the convention of the "loke smits" are rapidly making. The Business Men's League will give a banquet in honor of the humorists and Mark Twain, Robert J. Burdette, Richard W. Fox, and J. H. Morgan, J. H. Morgan, W. Foley and W. J. Lampton are among those who are on the program for speeches.

STUBBS IS A CANDIDATE FOR KANSAS LEGISLATURE.

Man Who Broke the Machine Power May Be Speaker of the House if He Will Accept Office.

REPUBLICAN SPECIAL.
Topeka, Kas., May 7.—W. R. Stubbs, who formally announced to-day his candidacy for the Legislature from the Forty-first District, served in the House in the session of 1903, and on account of his efficiency and determined fight on the waste of public money by the machine that controlled the House, he has been slated for re-election by his neighbors in Douglas County ever since.
It was Stubbs's first experience in legislation, and the methods of the politicians shocked him. He was a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and thereby saw all the grafts go through. He was powerless to prevent them, so he only could voice his indignation.
Stubbs will be Speaker of the House if he will accept the office.

ALABAMA TO GO UNINSTRUCTED.
Underwood Says His State Will Come to St. Louis to Pick a Winner.
REPUBLICAN SPECIAL.
Washington, May 7.—Representative Underwood of Alabama voiced a sentiment which prevails among the Democracy of the country in a frank interview to-day Mr. Underwood said:
"Alabama will go to St. Louis to pick a winner rather than to vote the instructions of any convention at home. That is why, in my opinion, our State County must here to-day wait the party to win and desire our delegates to have the amplest opportunity to ascertain who the successful leader would be."
"My opinion is that, when our delegates find out how much party dissension in New York Parker's candidacy would invite, they will try to find somebody else. The sentiment to-day, however, it may be acknowledged is strongly in favor of only in the belief that he is the man to carry New York."
"Personally, I wish the Democrats would drop the two-thirds rule at the St. Louis convention. It is more liable to result in a weak nomination than to result in a strong one, because it is apt to compel the majority to accept a compromise at the behest of a minority."

"CREATION" TAKES ONE BACK TO EDEN

Man's Beginning Shown on the Pike.

A JOURNEY THROUGH AGES.

Making of the World Displayed by Means of a Remarkable Series of Transformations—Artist's Other Attractions.

In a remarkable series of transformations, a special party of newspaper men was shown the chaos that prevailed before the creation of the world, the events as they transpired during the world's making, and as the finished result of the hand of the Creator, yesterday afternoon. The transformations are shown in Rotliar's Pike attraction, "Creation," which was opened to the public for the first time yesterday afternoon.

At the entrance of the panorama is an immense sculptural piece, the artist's conception of Eve, the first woman. Back of this sculptural work is an immense waterfall, which has trosted glass for its background, and to either side there is seen the streams of running water. Little boats, with seating capacity for six persons, float in these streams, and gradually through every century, until the Statue of Eve, one is taken through winds and turns, until, after going twice around the dome, he finds himself in the midst of vast amphitheater, with the chaos of the unmade world facing him.

The journey to the amphitheater is one of the most remarkable illusions to be seen on the World's Fair Pike. Drifting slowly down the stream, one passes beautiful scenes, which are allegorical descriptions of the world at various stages. From the Garden of Eden he is lifted gradually through every century, until he finally completes the circuit of the water race and looks upon the pictures of the Twentieth Century.

Entering the amphitheater, the scene is begun over again. The chaos effect obtained by Rotliar is a master effort in conception.

Volcanoes are seen at great distance, emitting smoke and lava from their craters. The land and waters are mixed, the clouds intermingled with the white, and one great scene of chaos meets the eyes of the spectators.

SCENES ARE CHANGED.
One by one the scenes are changed. The volcanoes die, the clouds are lifted. By a peculiar electric lighting effect the vapors can be seen passing over the lands. Trees and shrubbery sprout up, as if by magic, the sun rises and sets; the moon appears and a dull gray light rests upon the newly made earth.

The plant life increases before the gaze of spectators, the lights are modulated so as to fit the scenes and in time one sees the moon go down and the darkness of night rests upon the universe.

The trees and plants of the earth disappear, the clouds vanish, and when the audience awakens from its dream the great doors of the amphitheater are found open and the spectators discover that they have not been living in a forgotten age, but that they are in the Twentieth Century, in St. Louis and on the Pike.

The music of a great pipe organ lends itself to the enchantment of the scenes presented in Rotliar's newest illusion, and the results are mystifying.

Besides "Creation," all of Rotliar's Pike attractions are now open to the public, including in these are the Russian Village, offering Russian fortune tellers and natives, who appear in many phases; the Russian troupe of singers and dancers; the Siberian railroad, with its trip from St. Louis to Port Arthur in twenty minutes; and the Deep Sea Divers, an amusing and instructive entertainment.

Last Vestige of Park Disappears.
When the bathhouse close to the eastern fence of the Exposition, which formerly occupied a place on the shore of Peninsula Lake, is torn down to-day, the last vestige of Forest Park in the Fair grounds will disappear. The bathhouse has been used since the beginning of the Fair as the field office of the civil engineers. It was the first building in use by the Exposition.

To Start Model Gardens Soon.
Had the proper tools arrived, the model gardens in the United States Bureau of Plant Culture would have been started on the World's Fair grounds yesterday. The work, in all probability, will be commenced early this week. Thirty pupils have been selected from the public schools of St. Louis, five of whom will start the work. There are ten girls and twenty boys on the garden lists, and five of each sex will be at work each week on the plots.

Minister Goes to Washington.
The Chinese Minister to the United States, Sir Chen Chung Liang Chang, departed yesterday noon for Washington, after having attended the dedication of the Chinese Pavilion at the World's Fair, and the reception of Prince Fu Lun at the Washington Hotel. Sir Chen Chung Liang was attended to the depot by several Chinese officials who are in St. Louis for the Exposition.
